Cause of the Disaster.

The disaster to the excursion steame The disaster to the excursion steamer General Slocum, in which nearly a thousand lives were lost, never would have occurred if one of the deckhands had retained his presence of mind, according to the opinion of former Fire Marshal Thomas F. Freel, who testified yesterday before the federal commission which is making an inquiry into the disaster. Mr. Freel said that a member of the steamer's crew named Coakly trstified before the coroner that he saw the fire and tried to find something to amother it with. He picked up a bag of the fire and tried to had something to smother it with. He picked up a bag of charcoal and threw it at the barrel, knocking it over, and so spreading the fire. He then ran to get the fire hose, leaving the door to the stairway open. "That was all the fire wanted a little air and it spread," said Freel. 'If the man had not lost his head he could have picked up the barrel and thrown it overboard and the disaster would not have happen-ed." Another witness, Mrs. Meda Witte who was on the Slocum when it burned, who was on the Slocum when it burned, said that she and her nurse tried to launch a lifeboat when they heard the Slocum was on fire, but gave it up when they saw that one of the boards was out of the bottom of the boat.

Triumphs of Modern Surgery. Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed en-tirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; anti-septic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It a'so allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by which such injuries entail.
